

THE new PHYSICIAN

AMERICAN MEDICAL STUDENT ASSOCIATION

January-February

The Future of Medicine

Technology in training. How will today's tools evolve to help future physicians stay current on evidence-based medicine?

Future plans. What medical students want medicine to look like when they are in practice.

March-April

Public Health

Diseases of lifestyle. Poor diet, lack of exercise and smoking are major threats to health, but they also present opportunities for medical students to help patients make healthier choices.

Identifying and counseling abuse victims. If you even recognize signs of abuse when you see them, will you know how to help?

Summer

The Medical Arts

Creative Arts Contest. Our 18th annual.

The unusual doctor. Creative ways to use a medical degree.

Palliative care. Often misunderstood, this compassionate area of medicine will become increasingly important.

September

The Economics of Health

Econ 101. As future physicians, medical students need to understand the drivers of their trillion-dollar industry. Here's a bird's eye view.

Numbers game. Efforts to increase the number of medical graduates have been successful. Now what?

October

The Equity Issue

Quiet bias. What the "hidden curriculum" teaches about race, and how those lessons affect care.

Undocumented, untreated? Immigration and the health care system.

November-December

Global Health and Learning

Playing God. We explore the ethical dilemmas of working in a low-resource setting.

Residents abroad. How to spend part—or all—of residency overseas.

2012 Highlights

Student Editor
Jack S. DePaolo

Editorial Advisory Board
Angel Desai
Ilena George
Emily Junck
Drew Lee

Executive Editor
Managing Publisher
Carol Williams-Nickelson, Psy.D.

Editor
Pete Thomson

Art Direction
TouchThree

Production Manager
Ruth Lipson

Editorial Assistant
Mary Jo Lawrence

Contact us

web www.amsa.org/tnp
e-mail tnp@amsa.org
tel 703 620-6600
fax 703 620-6445
twitter @thenewphysician
mail 1902 Association Dr.
Reston, VA 20191

Advertise with us

e-mail adv@amsa.org
tel 410 584-1964

Last updated June 28, 2011
TNP's editorial calendar is a working document and is subject to change.